

Interview Treadwell's

July 18, 2009 - Saturday File is at <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Blk2fFb37UA> The first part of this interview is now online. Enjoy!

Announcement

25 September 2009 (Friday)
Rune Mistress - Freya Aswynn
Treadwell's Meets Freya Aswynn
An Interview and Discussion on Odin, the Volvas, and Rune Magic 7.15 for 7.30 start

Freya Aswynn is a key figure in the latest renaissance in rune magic and germanic-inspired mystery practices. She shot to fame with the publication of The Leaves of Yggdrasil and her debut album Fruits of Yggdrasil in the late 1980s, and through the 1990s, living in London, she developed and disseminated her work with a tenacity that took the whole of Britain by storm. She published and worked experientially in a potent, individualised practice of female-empowered Asatru. Few people, indeed few female magicians of any era, can have been as influential as she was on the preoccupations of a community. In some sense, one could say she has been to the Runes what Timothy Leary was to LSD.

Freya Aswynn now lives in Spain, but is back in the UK briefly, during which time she will be appearing at Treadwell's for one night only. Those who have met her will know she emanates pride, intensity, intelligence and utter conviction. Tonight she is interviewed by Christina Oakley Harrington, who invites her to talk about her vision of the runes, her feelings about female magical power, and about the values of her spiritual path. Questions from the audience will be taken too, at this rare audience with a living legend.

Book early as places are even more limited than usual. Note: it is expected this interview will be filmed for YouTube; audience members will not appear on the film, and there should be little or no disruption to the evening on account of this. email: info@treadwells-london.com <info@treadwells-london.com> 34 Tavistock Street, Covent Garden, London WC2E 7PB <http://www.treadwells-london.com/default.asp>